What kinds of wood are used to make the furniture?

Teakwood (Jati)

Well-known as a medium high-density wood suitable for fine indoor furniture, as well as for outdoor garden furniture, boat building and flooring, teak wood is very durable and resistant to decay and termites. The teak wood that we use is sourced from the Indonesian Forestry Agency (PERHUTANI), a state agency that manages sustainable teak plantations in Indonesia, as well as from government-approved village plantations.

Suar Wood (Trembesi)

Known as Trembesi in Indonesia, Suar wood has a very attractive grain suitable for fine furniture. The interlocking grain prevents the wood from cracking when moved to drier climates. Similar with a native South America Rain Tree, Suar Trees are fast growing and easily replaceable.

Our dining tables are the centerpiece of connection, thoughtfully handcrafted to elevate any dining experience. Made from high-quality suar and teak wood, each table boasts exceptional durability and a unique character, ensuring that no two pieces are alike. Available in various sizes, they seamlessly blend functionality and artistry, making them ideal for any setting.

Coffee Table

A blend of style and practicality, our coffee tables are designed to complement your living spaces. Made from sustainably sourced suar and teak wood, each table highlights the natural beauty of the wood with its distinctive patterns and smooth finishes. Whether for casual conversations or showcasing decor, our coffee tables bring warmth and sophistication to any room.

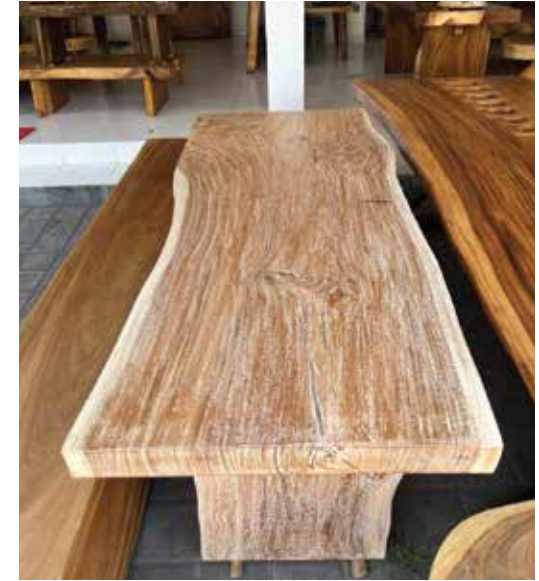

Natural Finishes

The natural finish highlights the raw beauty of the wood, showcasing its organic grain patterns and rich textures. This timeless choice celebrates the authenticity of suar and teak wood, allowing their natural characteristics to take center stage. Perfect for those who appreciate simplicity and elegance, the natural finish brings warmth and a touch of nature into any space.

Black Wash Finishes

Bold and sophisticated, the black wash finish adds a dramatic touch to the wood while preserving its unique texture. This finish enhances the grain's depth, creating a striking contrast that blends seamlessly with modern and industrial design aesthetics. It's a refined option for those seeking a statement look that exudes confidence and style.

White Wash Finishes

Soft and versatile, the white wash finish offers a contemporary twist to classic wood furniture. By lightly accentuating the wood's grain with a subtle white hue, this finish creates a clean and airy aesthetic that complements coastal, rustic, or minimalist interiors. It's the perfect choice for bringing light and elegance to any setting.
